

Have you remembered Regis College in your will?

Regis College has been supporting the mission of the Church by educating men and women for ministry for more than 90 years. As a Jesuit graduate school of Theology, we draw on a long tradition of teaching to educate students for pastoral and academic work, informed by Ignatian spirituality. Today's students are challenged to succeed in a challenging world. Many carry debt and work in part-time or even full-time jobs.

Through your financial support we can offer scholarships and bursaries to those who are seeking to serve the Church in a great variety of ways.

A will is a clear and legally binding statement of your wishes; however, you can make changes to your will if you desire. In a will you would make a bequest to an institution such as Regis College.

By remembering an organization in your will, your bequest may help minimize taxes on the final income tax return.

You could word your bequest as follows:

Percentage

"I give, devise and bequeath to Regis College, the Jesuit School of Theology at the University of Toronto _____ % of my estate."

Dollar Amount

"I give, devise and bequeath to Regis College, the Jesuit School of Theology at the University of Toronto $ _____ of my estate."

Residue

"All the residue of my estate, including real and personal property, I give, devise and bequeath to Regis College, the Jesuit School of Theology at the University of Toronto.

Please Note: This brochure has been prepared to assist friends of Regis College. It outlines methods and opportunities for providing support for Jesuit education through bequests.
